

Getting Closer

Written by Kara

Friday, 22 October 2010 22:16

Whitney sat on the potty chair yesterday, after she peed on her towel. We had gotten out of the shower and she was drying off. I went into the other room to grab a diaper, and when I came back she told me she had peed on the towel. Sure enough, she had. So, I had her sit on her pretty pink potty chair. She sat there for a good while, all while being fed Skittles as bribery. After she'd been on there for a good 10 minutes, I had her get off. There was a tiny dime size amount of pee in her potty chair. We were so excited. She got candy and everyone told her what a big girl she was. And that was that.

Today, Whitney was calling for me from downstairs. I was in the middle of lessons with Emily, so I sent Karlie down to check on her. Karlie came back and reported that Whitney was lying down with her feet in the air with a diaper and the wipes next to her. She was stinky and wanted me to change her diaper.

We're getting closer everyday to potty training.